The low price of eggs is due to the fact that Congress is expected to pass a bill forbidding the sale of cold storage eggs over three months old. It has been the practice to store the spring eggs and hold them until the following winter. The Egg Trust is afraid to attempt to corner the eggs and be forced to turn them loose in the summer when prices are lowest. This is the reason given by the produce dealers, but there are other reasons, chief among them being that the high prices have driven the city people to produce their own eggs. In almost every back yard in Hopkinsville there is a flock of cackling hens and many city people are selling eggs instead of buying them. The poultry craze is raging everywhere and the American hen is helping to solve the problem of high living expenses.

Judge George Denny, aged 63, died Tuesday at Lexington. He was for years a leader in the Republican party in Kentucky. He was defeated for Congress by only 106 votes in 1894 in the Seventh Kentucky district, when he opposed W.C. Owens, the Democratic nominee.

Improved Hickory King Corn

My attention was first called to Hickory King Corn twelve or fifteen years ago.

It was claimed to produce more corn, NOT COBS AND STALKS, especially on thin land, than any other variety. I had been planting the different varieties grown in this section, Middle Tennessee and North of Ohio River. Each had its serious defects, too much cob, too long maturing or too chaffy, and each had too many nubbins, or ears not filled out. I did not like especially the first crop of Hickory King Corn I raised. The ears were most too small, and not enough stalk.

The next year I crossed it with Huffman, giving it more stalk and longer ears, and still retaining the large, deep grains with a slightly larger cob. Since then I have not planted any other corn on the farm, and have done all I could to prevent its mixing with my neighbor's corn, many of whom plant this variety.

In a test made at the Iowa Experimental College some years ago this corn shelled out most pounds of corn per bushel out of thirty varieties. On account of the small cob, this corn did not sour in the shock in the fall of 1906 during the wet harvest, so there was no trouble about the seed for the 1907 crop, while with almost all other varieties the case was just reversed. I had no trouble getting a stand of 97 per cent. without testing seed. Samples of several varieties of corn were sent to the Agricultural Department to be tested. The report showed Hickory King to be one of the most satisfactory they had tested.

Comment by Prof. C. A. Mooers, of the University of Tennessee, after a few years' test with "Boone County White," "Iowa Silver Mine" and fourteen others. (See Bulletin No. 89; July 1910, Page 51.)

"Hickory King is said to have originated in Virginia. At any rate, it is extensively grown in certain counties of that State, and its use is rapidly spreading throughout Tennessee. The ears are small and very thoroughly protected by husks and more than one ear is frequently produced on the stalk. The grains are so large and flat that when once seen they are likely to be remembered. No other variety grown at this Station equals this one in the big percentage of shelled corn—70 pounds of ear corn as grown under average field conditions running with 61 to 63 pounds of shelled corn. None of the other varieties surpass it in soundness, and no other has proven its equal as a grain producer on either poor or medium upland, and its capacity to give high yields even on rich land has been demonstrated more than once. For example, a block of 16 1-40-acre plots planted at the rate of 10,000 stalks per acre on fertile bottom land at the Station farm averaged in 1909 nearly 90 bushels of shelled corn to the acre. The chief objections urged against it are the hardness of grain and the difficulty with which it is husked. Selection and breeding may overcome these defects as well as increase the yield. Also selections are suggested both for a one-eared variety for grain and for a prolific strain for silage, for which purpose on poor uplands it is even now well suited. Failure to plant thick enough is not an uncommon cause of unsatisfactory yield, especially if ranker-growing and large-eared varieties, which require wide spacing have so to speak, established the rate of planting."

The most prominent seed corn catalogs in the country advertise Hickory King Corn, and price it as high as any variety except their leaders, for which they claim "The earth and the fullness thereof." Note the description taken from two of the most prominent seedsmen. One out West says: "A white variety of field corn which has the smallest cob of any in existence, of vigorous habits and a splendid and sure cropper, especially well suited to light and thin soil. A very desirable variety and largely planted in many Southern States. It does well in all Northern and Central Western States."

This seems to cover nearly all the corn section.

Another local catalogue says. "The ears are rather small, but usually two or three on each stalk. It is a good yielder. The cobs are small, a single grain sometimes being large enough to cover across section of cob. The grains are very large, flinty, and of the finest quality for milling or feeding."

What else do we want with it? This corn is particularly good for early crops and will give satisfactory results.

These are correct descriptions of the corn. It does not mature so early as some of those Northern and Western "leaders," and hence is not so light and husky. It matures earlier than the old Willis, the most widely known corn here, and will produce more and better corn. I know no corn so easy to get a stand of. Ears that have been on the ground all winter will usually germinate satisfactorily. It will stand more exposure than will "Willis" and is as satisfactory for meal and feed as any corn grown anywhere. The one objection to it is, it shells too easily.

I can furnish this Improved Hickory King Corn, such as I plant, at $2.00 per bushel.

Treating The Wrong Disease

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality they are all only symptoms caused by some weakness or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots without the use of alcohol and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve-Every woman ought to possess Dr. Pierce's great book, the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a magnificent thousand-page illustrated volume. It teaches mothers how to care for their children and themselves. It is the best doctor to have in the house in case of emergency. Over half a million copies were sold at $1.50 each, but one free copy in paper-covers will be sent on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only; or send 31 stamps for a handsome cloth-bound copy. Address the publishers, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

"Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the distinctly feminine organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

THE MOTHER BEAR'S MISTAKE

Thought Frolicsome Offspring Had Been Up to Mischief and Boxed His Ears.

A Washington man relates how, on one occasion in the west, when he was on his way back to camp after a day's shooting, he suddenly came in sight of a big she bear with two cubs following her in single file. They were proceeding along a ridge, the forms of all of them sharply defined against the evening sky.

It was a long range for a shot, but the sportsman drew a bead on the old she bear and fired. The result was amusing. The procession stopped. The she bear scratched herself hastily, then turned round, and, regarding the cub immediately behind with severe disapproval, boxed its ears soundly.

Mother Bear then went on her way, her back uncommonly rigid and unrelenting, and it was clearly apparent to the sportsman that she was under the impression that her frolicsome offspring had been up to some mischief that must not be repeated.—Harper's Weekly.

THE LIMIT.

"Was the play bad?"
"Well, I should say it was. Why, even the gas went out at the close of the second act."

WANTS PLAIN TITLE.

Bishop Cortlandt Whitehead of the Episcopal diocese of Pittsburgh in a letter to the Churchman, discussing the subject of a change in the title page of the prayer book, says that he personally would prefer the simple line, "The Book of Common Prayer." Bishop Whitehead adds that this would "throw the book out for all men to use, for whatever devotional purpose, as the book common to all English speaking peoples, and to all others who care to translate and use it. Thereby we get rid of discussions concerning Catholic, Protestant or Episcopal and have a title page unsectarian, untheological, without a narrow and doctrinal label on its very front."

MANUFACTURED DIAMONDS.

In an address before the Royal institute in London on the development of explosives during the last 50 years, a distinguished scientist related a remarkable story of what occurred during one of his experiments with a gunpowder made of cordite and carbon. After the explosion, in which the elevation of temperature was estimated to have been about 4,300 degrees Centigrade, a residue was left in the explosion chamber in which the investigator afterward found diamonds. They were, of course, exceedingly minute, and must have been formed from the carbon under the influence of the immense heat and pressure developed at the moment of the explosion.

A NEW VARIETY.

A prominent politician in the middle west gave a banquet to a score or so of his neighbors, and, as he lived in a "dry" state and wanted some way to serve wine at the dinner, he had some trouble figuring out a scheme, but when the watermelon was brought on it was found it had been plugged and filled with champagne—"and, do you know," said one of the guests, "I saw every farmer there slipping some watermelon seeds into his pocket."—Milwaukee Free Press.

CURRENT COMMENT

CREAM OF NEWS COMPILED AND COLLECTED FROM ALL SOURCES

New evidence against Lorimer has been discovered and the case against him is to be reopened in the Senate. Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester Co., says Edward Hines, a millionaire lumber dealer, asked him to put up $10,000 of the $100,000 needed to elect Lorimer. Hines said Edward Tilden was collector of the funds. H. H. Kohlsaat is leading the new investigation and the Senate as at present made up is likely to make short work of the Blond Boss.

The press boys who visited Middlesboro last summer thought the Magic City was a pretty wet place, but it was still wetter this week when Yellow creek got on the rampage and spread a muddy flood all over town. Not a business house escaped damage and many residences were flooded.

Feudist Ed Callahan, of Breathitt county, is selling his property and will move. He is convinced that he cannot live in Breathitt and escape assassination.

If Dr. Ben Bruner gets into the Republican scramble for the gubernatorial nomination it may become a picturesque affair after all.

Judge O'Rear in his platform has committed himself to quite a number of isms, any of which ought to defeat him.

The negro troops at San Antonio, Texas, have been detailed to patrol the Mexican border.

Honeywell, Kansas, has a woman mayor who will appoint a woman chief of police.

Well Said.

There is a discussion in Congress, according to the Washington correspondents as to whether Caleb Powers, the newly elected Congressman from the Eleventh Congressional District, shall be allowed to retain his seat because of the fact that he is a convicted felon.

The editor of the Messenger has not the shadow of a doubt in his mind that Caleb Powers was a conspirator in the plot that resulted in the murder of William Goebel; that he aided and abetted that conspiracy; or that he conveniently absented himself from his private office on the day that the fatal shot was fired from a window of that particular office. That he attempted to escape from Frankfort in disguise before an indictment was found against him is known to the writer and to hundreds of others who were in Frankfort at the time. That he was thrice convicted of the murder is a matter of court record. That he was finally pardoned by a partisan Governor after a farcical examination is known of all men who kept up with the events of the times. But with that record, he went before his party in the Eleventh District and won the nomination and election.

Some good people voted for him on account of party regularity. Some voted for him because they were ignorant of the record. Some voted for him because they thought Goebel ought to have been killed, and gloried in the murder. Through this chain of circumstances he was elected Congressman from his district. There can be no doubt he received the majority of the votes cast. For this reason, we think that he ought to be permitted to keep his seat and represent his people as best he can. If they can stand it, the rest of the country ought to bear up under it.

The Democrats representing the other districts do not have to associate with him. He will have a seat in the Cherokee strip along with his fellow-Republicans. But let him stay, to the eternal shame and discredit of the district that sent him there.—Bowling Green Messenger.

Goes to Paducah.

A deal was consummated Wednesday by which Dr. E. C. Evans, of Hopkinsville, acquires a half interest in the drug store of W. B. McPherson, at 425 Broadway. Dr. Evans has been in the city for several days and was so well pleased with the business outlook in Paducah that he decided to join with Dr. McPherson, who, throughout his lengthy stay in Paducah, has succeeded in building up a splendid business.

Dr. Evans will move his family to this city in a few days and at once identify himself with the business and social life of Paducah.—News Democrat.

Gave Birth To Fifteen.

The most remarkable record to become a part of the vital statistics of Trimble county was made public last week by J. E. Ray, a traveling man, whose home is in Milton, Ky. Mr. Ray received a letter from a relative in Milton, stating that Mrs. Chas. Dolby, of that place, last week, gave birth to fifteen children. The babies were from three to four inches in length, perfectly formed, and though minute in size were well developed. None of the children lived.—Marion Leader.

Sayman Caught.

Frankfort, Ky., April 7.—Warden E. E. Mudd, of the Frankfort penitentiary, received word that Frank Sayman, who escaped from the penitentiary over a week ago, was arrested Tuesday night in Cincinnati. When arrested he was caught breaking into a house and is now under arrest in Cincinnati charged with grand larceny.

On The Move.

Francisco I. Madero, the insurrection leader, has moved his headquarters from Bustillo's hacienda, sixty miles east of Chihuahua, Mexico, to a point within thirty-five miles of the city.

The nature of the proposed movement is not divulged. Peace negotiations have been abandoned.

Nursing Broken Arm.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

DAMAGE BY FLOOD

Throws 7,000 Miners Out Of Work At Middlesboro, Kentucky

A HALF MILLION LOSS

Business Section Of City Under Water—Mines and Trestles Destroyed.

Middlesboro, Ky., April 7.—Damage estimated at a half million dollars was done in Middlesboro and the Yellow creek valley by floods Tuesday night.

Many coal mines in this vicinity were washed out, and 7,000 people are thrown out of employment for 30 days.

The business section of Middlesboro was under water.

Many trestles on railroads were washed out.

Garden Notes.

Get manure in the neighborhood and mix with your soil. Leaf mold is also a good thing for the seed box.

Do not buy old seeds. You can pretty near tell the age of 'em by examination of the package.

Keep your seed box in the window where it will get the sun, but turn the box around once each day after the shoots come up.

Sow the seeds in rows as it will facilitate transplanting when warm weather comes and will contribute to the thrift of the plants.

No man likes to hear a woman praise another man.

Houston, Tex.—"For five years," says Mrs. L. Fulemchek, of this place, "I suffered with pains all over, especially in my back and side, and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. A friend told me of Cardui. Since taking it, I feel so much better! Now I can do all my housework and pains don't bother me any more at all." Cardui is a strength-building medicine. Fifty years of success have produced, amongst its many users, confidence in Cardui and what it will do. During this time, Cardui has relieved the female ailments of over a million women. Why not yours? Try it, today. Your druggist sells it.

Countzler's Drug Store

The Location

The store is located on the Phoenix corner, Ninth and Main Streets, popular for half a century as a hotel and more recently occupied by the Commercial Bank & Trust Co. The location is central and convenient for all and we hope to make it a point of interest to all who need drug store goods.

The Equipment

The store has been equipped in most modern and attractive style and at large expense. The fixtures are of mahogany throughout and of latest design.

The show cases are plate glass with an eighteen inch marble base. These cases are the newest style and especially adapted for display of the up-to-date goods that will be shown in them.

Our soda fountain is one of the finest in this part of the country.

Everything New

Our fixtures, fountain and other equipment as well as the entire stock of goods is new. Our aim has been to equip a store that in all its features is modern to the very hour. Quality counts in the drug business and here quality will be maintained in every department. Service will be high grade at the most reasonable cost.

Mr. Gaither's Department

Our prescription department will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Ed. Gaither.

As Mr. Gaither has been identified with the drug business for a number of years, no introduction will be necessary.

His standing as a pharmacist is the highest, and the physicians of the vicinity, as well as his large circle of friends and acquaintances, will be pleased to know that he will preside over the splendid prescription equipment of the new store.

The Management

The proprietor has been engaged in the drug business all his business life, having conducted a store in Greenville the past ten years. He is well known to many of the people of Hopkinsville and hopes to rapidly extend his acquaintance, as he comes to the city with a view to making it his permanent home.

The Policy

The aim in view is to provide a thoroughly up-to-date drug store, one that will be fully worthy of the community. While the equipment and the goods are fine, prices will be as low as can be had anywhere.

Right prices are part of good service and we shall endeavor to gain and maintain trade by making it worth while to trade here.

Special Lines

We shall make a specialty of the famous Violet line of imported toilet goods. This line is made in Paris and we are showing a complete stock of the goods.

We shall also carry the celebrated Modjeska Caramels, made in Louisville, and the Jacob's line of Chocolates, made in New Orleans.

You are Invited

We extend a most cordial invitation to everybody to call and inspect the new store. Don't wait until you need something in our line. Just make us a neighborly visit, which will be as highly appreciated as though you came to buy. We have a store worth seeing and hope you will come and see if you did not on opening day.

Mrs. Duerson Dead.

Mrs. Ruby Watts Duerson, wife of Geo. E. Duerson, died at her home a few miles south of town Sunday morning, aged 36 years. Tuberculosis, from which the deceased had long been a sufferer, was the cause of death. Mrs. Duerson was a daughter of E. O. Watts, a well-known farmer of the Trenton neighborhood. She was a member of the Baptist church, and was a most excellent lady, highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her husband and little boy survive.—Pembroke Journal.

Adventures by the Way

When Cecilia saw the bamboo tea tray and stand in the window of the little shop her whole soul yearned for them. So she was irresistibly drawn through the doorway and soon she had purchased them in spite of the fact that she would have to carry them home herself.

She started off with them bravely enough, though the upper edge of the tray in its paper wrappings reached above her waist and she kicked the legs of the stand at each step.

"Well, it's light, anyhow," she told herself consolingly.

It was light. At the first street crossing a gust of wind caught the tray and flapped it like a great wing, propelling Cecilia into the path of an approaching automobile, from which she was dragged by a disapproving policeman.

"Cab, lady?" called a cabman at the corner as she neared him. "Didn't know they allowed moving vans on the boulevard," he remarked to a companion, before she was out of ear-shot.

"Disgusting creature!" muttered Cecilia, hastening on. "I wonder if I'd better take the elevated over to the station or go on and take a bus?" she reflected. She regarded the steep incline of the elevated stairway and decided on the omnibus.

"I'll get in an empty one and go up to the front corner," she planned, "and then these things won't be in the way of other people." A small inner voice which Cecilia quickly suppressed, added: "Not so conspicuous."

"I'm so glad I bought them," she assured herself defiantly.

She found the omnibuses all partly filled, so she stationed herself at the edge of the sidewalk to wait for an empty to draw up.

"Pardon me," said a haughty voice behind her. "I wish to get into the omnibus. You and your—ah—parcel are blocking the way."

Cecilia stepped hastily out of the path of a portly, hobble-skirted personage and the legs of the stand became entangled with the feet of a passing pedestrian.

"Confound it!" exclaimed the man, disentangling his feet and glaring at the cause of the accident. "Wonder she wouldn't try to carry home a whole furniture store," he remarked to his companion as they passed on.

Cecilia made her way to the inner edge of the pavement and, turning her back to the passersby, gazed with apparent absorption into the shop window.

"Say, ain't that brown one perfectly swell!" cried a voice behind her. "Let's get up close to the window so's I can see how that lace is put on."

Two women pressed close up to the window, one of them encountering the legs of the stand before she perceived it.

"Well, for goodness' sake!" she exclaimed, stumbling. She looked from the parcel to Cecilia and then with a grin at her friend. "What do you know about that?" she said.

"I thought moving day was last May," giggled the other.

The driving up of an empty omnibus offered Cecilia an avenue of escape, and she dived across the sidewalk and plunged into it, seeking the farthest corner in which to stow herself and her bundle.

"This isn't so bad, after all!" she thought.

Hardly did the reflection pass through her mind before consternation entered it from another quarter. "Oh, here's that Mr. Selby, Mrs. White's brother," she said to herself. "I do hope he won't see me. Of course, he will, though."

"Well, Miss Thorpe, this is what I call luck!" exclaimed the young man, fitting himself into the vacant place beside her.

"Why, Mr. Selby!" cried Cecilia. "Luck! I should say so. I was just thinking that I should have to ride over to the station alone."

"Let's wait until these other people get out," suggested young Selby. "We've got lots of time for the five-twenty."

The woman opposite rose and made for the door.

"I beg pardon," called young Selby after her. "She's forgetting her furniture," he whispered laughingly to Cecilia.

Cecilia put out her hand desperately. "It isn't hers," she said. "It's mine."

"Yours!" began Selby, in astonishment. He recovered himself quickly. "Well, it looks like something mighty inter—"

"Yes, it is mine," burst out Cecilia. "It's a Japanese bamboo tea tray and a stand. I bought them at a shop where they don't deliver things, and I carried them over to the bus, and every idiot on the street has had something to say about that horrid package. If I had put the whole thing on my head and run a hat pin through it everybody would have thought it was some kind of a new hat and said it was awfully stylish, but because I carried it in my hand they laughed at me."

Young Selby looked at her flushed cheeks and then at the parcel, and laughed long and loud.

"Excuse these tears," he said. "I don't want to seem unsympathetic, but it is quite a sizable load for a person of your build." He stood up and took the bundle in his hand. "Well, anyway," he announced, "I'm going to carry it the rest of the way home. I've got to see what the things look like with the wrappings off."

THAT TOUCH IN TIME

IT MEANS THE SAVING OF MANY ANNOYANCES.

Small Nuisances Too Long Neglected When Little Time or Trouble Is Needed to Remedy Them—Some Useful Hints.

It is astonishing how we impose on our patience and strength by neglecting little things about the house—creaky hinges, doors that latch and unlatch hard, catches that don't catch, loose handles—annoyances we notice every day, but never think of repairing unless some unusually provoking thing happens in connection with one of these little slipshods.

A good plan is to go over the house periodically and remedy these matters—you will be surprised at the number of them.

For dresser and chiffonier drawers that stick, remove the drawer, turn upside down, and rub the bottom edges with soap. Rub the places where the drawers rest with soap also. If the dresser sticks because it is too close a fit, get some one to shave it off a bit at the edge with a plane.

For creaking door hinges apply a little vaseline with a duster. Sewing machine oil will do, too, or even olive oil if there is nothing else handy.

Buy a small bottle of stain and a tin of white enamel and touch up all the spots on the floor or door and window frames that have become marred. Take out all the unnecessary screws and hooks that mark the places where curtains used to hang.

If the wall paper is torn and the plaster is broken, fill the broken place with plaster of Paris, then cover it with a piece of plain white paper coming just to the edges of the torn wall paper. With the children's water colors paint the plain paper, following the design of the wall paper, and the place will never be noticed. Of course, this is unnecessary if there are any left over pieces of wall paper at hand.

Replace all lost knobs and correct faulty catches on wardrobes and cupboard doors in particular. Doors which will not shut should be planed off at top or bottom.

Gas fixtures may be made as bright and shining as new with metal paint.

Window blinds that are worn and dirty may be unrolled, taken from the roller, turned end for end and tacked on again, and a new hem sewed in the lower end with the sewing machine.

Suggestions.

Pantry windows often require shading, either from the sun or from the passersby. This may be cheaply and satisfactorily done as follows: Cut white tissue paper the size of the panes, smear the glass over with milk, then press the paper on smoothly. When dry the panes will resemble frosted glass and cannot be distinguished from such from the outside.

When tablecloths and sheets are new, a piece of tape should always be sewn flat on the hem at each corner, so as to double the life of the articles and also prevent it from getting out of shape. Another good plan is to occasionally fold them width ways instead of lengthways. This prevents the folding from always being in the same place and thus wearing into holes quickly.

Noodles and Oysters.

Noodles are sometimes used instead of cracker crumbs or grated bread when preparing a dish of scalloped oysters. Cook the noodles like macaroni. Arrange them and the oysters in alternate layers, putting some of the noodles at the bottom of the dish, as well as at the top. Season with salt and paprika and moisten with oyster liquor, and, if convenient, add some cream. Spread the top with butter, and bake until cooked through and a delicate brown on top. About twenty minutes will suffice.

Macaroni may be used to advantage in the same way.

Ham Baked in Milk.

A delicious way to prepare ham is as follows: Get a slice of ham about one and one-half inches thick, place in a shallow pan, and cover with milk. Bake in a slow oven until milk has soaked into the ham and until the ham is a light brown on top. Gravy is made by adding milk to the grease which remained in the pan after ham has been removed and then thickened with flour.

Dominoes.

Have a plain cake baked in thin sheets and cut into small oblong pieces the size and shape of a domino, a trifle larger; frost the tops and sides; when the frosting is cold, draw the black lines and make the dots, with a soft brush dipped in melted chocolate. These are nice for children's parties.

Custard Pie.

Beat together till light four eggs with four tablespoonfuls of sugar, then add one pint of milk and one teaspoonful of orange extract. Line a deep pie plate with a rich pastry, pour in the custard, place in a moderately hot oven, and bake until the pastry is brown and the custard firm. Serve hot or cold.

Use of Lime in Cellar.

A box of lime in an out-of-the-way corner of the cellar helps to keep the atmosphere dry and pure.

His Unfulfilled Duty

"Thomas, what are you doing?" asked Mrs. Prinster of her husband.

"Er—did you speak to me, dear?" returned Prinster, suddenly aroused.

"Only half a dozen times. What are you doing?"

"I am chasing a cat up a liberty pole," replied Prinster, frivolously. "Did you think I was trying to read the evening paper?"

"That is just what I wanted to talk to you about."

"About the evening paper?"

"No, about that yellow cat business."

"I suppose—oh, well, we'll let the paper wait. Your voice tells me that I am in bad, and you might as well get it off your mind first as last. What is my particular crime?"

"Last night you got up at midnight and gave little Dorothy a drink of water—"

"Yes, she cried for it half a dozen times and I decided that you were going to pretend to be asleep until I got up, so I—"

"I was asleep."

"Perhaps you were, but the sigh of satisfaction you gave as I started to climb out of bed sounded mighty realistic."

"Well, I didn't start to talk about that."

"Forgive me for mentioning it."

"Where were we?"

"You were just giving a sigh of relief and I was just starting through the chilly night to the bathroom to get a drink for Dorothy."

"Oh, yes. Well, you gave her the drink and put the glass on the dresser and came back to bed—"

"Funny you know all that—you being fast asleep all the time."

"Well, you did."

"I know it, but I fail to see why such actions on my part should be cause for comment, adverse or otherwise. Now, if I had given her the dresser and put the glass on the bed and gone to sleep in the bathroom, or if I had given her the bathroom and put the dresser to bed and curled up in front of the grate, or—"

"When you returned to bed the poor child was lonesome and nervous in the dark and she wanted to be sure that her daddy was awake and keeping her company, so she thought she would say something to assure herself that he had not gone to sleep, so she said: 'Bessie's going to have a birthday today.'"

"I believe I remember something of the sort."

"I don't remember—I know I was frightfully sleepy."

"You growled: 'I don't care if she is going to have a pink monkey with wooden shoes. I want to go to sleep.'"

"Did I say that?"

"Yes; then she was silent for a little while until the dark began to make her more nervous, and she called: 'Daddy!' and you said, 'What!' and she said, 'Are you awake?' and you said, 'No, I am fast asleep; don't you hear me snoring "Home, Sweet Home"?'"

"Well, well! I'd make a hit in vaudeville, wouldn't I?"

"You might, but you are not making a hit around here with that sort of humor, and I hope you will stop it. When the child wakes up in the night she is nervous and needs comforting and the right sort of parents would not be cross with her, but would talk to and comfort her and keep her mind occupied until she went to sleep."

"Yes?"

"Then this morning," pursued Mrs. Prinster, "she asked you what you had in your mouth, and you told her that you had a pair of rubber overshoes and a box of matches."

"I did?"

"Yes, you did. Now, what have you got to say to that?"

"Only that I am sorry I have been so thoughtless. I deserve your scolding. I promise never to do it again. Now, let's forget all about it and go down to the moving-picture show. I do believe that a parent should be always ready to respond to the child."

"I certainly do."

"That a parent ought to talk to the child at midnight and never be cross or short with her, no matter how sleepy the parent may happen to be."

"Indeed, I do. Now, what are you grinning about?"

"I was just thinking how unfortunate it was for Dorothy that you were fast asleep while I was peering at all those unkindnesses last night. Now if you had—"

"I will have the children ready in just a moment. Which picture show are we going to?"

Just "Chawed" Him.

He was a brown-headed valet from Jamaica, and it was the first time he had ever seen one of those little brown drinking cups you pay a penny for in railroad stations.

"What are you doing, Jim?" asked this master, returning from the ticket window.

"Dese had a drink of water, sah," responded the valet.

"And what did you do with the paper cup?"

"Paper! Lande, boss, I thought dat cup was like dese heah cones dat ice cream comes in an' done chawed it up."

Both Scorching.

"Gladys has taken up pyrography."

"And her brother, Jack?"

"He's burning the wind in an automobile."

Who Was There That You Knew?

IN the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Pierpont Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ezra Ripley Taylor and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review or Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War—the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

STYLES IN PICTURE FRAMES

Simplicity is a marked feature of the new styles in picture frames. And burnished gold and mahogany are the newest colors for frames. The former is a dull gold, and is so dull that it and mahogany blend beautifully, and so are often used together.

The effect of such combination is so entirely different from the old style of framing with wood and a strip of gilt next the glass that it is difficult to believe that the same colors are just carried out in the new tones. These shades used together bring out brown pictures effectively.

An authority on art furnishing is responsible for the information that the gold alone, the wood alone, and the two in combination may be used to successfully frame all kinds of pictures that are generally hung on walls of living rooms, parlors, libraries and bedrooms.

Narrow frames, from one to two inches, are correct for medium-sized pictures, while for smaller subjects, such as photographs, only a half-inch frame is required. The latter is usually of dark wood, beautifully polished to show the grain.

Both oval and square frames are correct. The latter are more expensive, because more difficult to make and polish.

Wooden frames are flat and plain, except in a few cases, when a little carving is seen as a motif placed in the center of the top of a square frame. The plain frames are, however, considered better taste.

Gold frames are exceedingly dainty in design, small delicate molding being preferred to bold patterns. Indeed, some of the frames give the impression of being worked with the needle and gold thread used generously, rather than molding.

The Home

Keep tacks in bottles. It saves opening many boxes to find a particular kind.

When cleaning house use plenty of turpentine in the scrub water. It means certain death to moths.

Left-over cereals need not be wasted. They are excellent fried like mush and eaten with syrup or honey.

Ammonia should not be used in the evening or near a fire, nor should the bottle be allowed to remain uncorked. It is inflammable, and its fumes are not specially healthful.

"Red" meats are less liable to contamination than fish or chicken. The latter should not be eaten if there is the least suspicion of odor about them. Beef slightly tainted, though disagreeable, will not produce ptomaine poisoning.

Normandy Soup.

Wipe a good-sized knuckle of veal, put it in the soup kettle with three quarts of water and place where it will heat slowly. When at the simmering point, skim carefully and allow to simmer for three hours. Add six small onions, thinly sliced and one-half loaf of stale bread and allow to simmer one hour longer. Remove the meat and rub the soup through a colander, put into a double boiler and stir into it one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour, rubbed to a smooth paste. Season with salt, pepper and a bit of nutmeg. Add one pint of milk and one of scalded cream and serve at once.

To Fry Fish.

Take white salt fish, remove all the bones by breaking the backbone at the tail and pulling toward the head; those that do not come out with the backbone can easily be removed by slipping a knife blade under the ends which always stick out of the flesh. When this is done place skin side up in a large pan of water, in which a little soda has been added, soak over night, press out all the water, roll in meal, fry crisp and brown and you will never have to pick out bones.

Corn Chowder.

Two slices of fat pork cut up and fried out, take out scraps and throw away, one good onion cut up and browned in fat, then add six raw potatoes cut up, pepper and salt to taste. Add one quart water. When it comes to a boil add one can of corn. When the above is cooked add one quart of milk and one tablespoonful of butter. When it comes to a boil it is ready to serve.

New Sandwiches.

For delicious sandwiches, smother goose livers in goose fat until they are soft, mash them into a paste with three hard-boiled eggs, season with salt and paprika, and a dash of grated onion, then spread on to

CAKES FOR AFTERNOON TEA

Recipes for the Making of Several Varieties of These Confections Needed in Entertaining.

The hostess who likes novel little cakes for afternoon tea will find these palatable. A sort of sweet biscuit shaped like a lady finger is made from the well-beaten whites of three eggs into which is beaten almost half a pound of confectioner's sugar. Add four ounces of melted butter, and stir in quickly at the last four ounces of pastry flour.

Put this paste into a pastry bag and force through a tube on well buttered baking sheets. Form finger shapes not too close together as they spread and bake in a moderate oven until a delicate brown.

For an almond cake beat to a cream three ounces of butter and half a pound of soft A sugar, then add gradually a half pint of milk and enough flour to make a light dough. Stir in a quarter of a pound of blanched and minced almonds lightly floured. Put on a floured board, roll about a quarter of an inch thick and cut into diamonds and squares.

Almond macaroons are made by beating the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, then stirring in half a pound of confectioner's sugar and the strained juice of half a lemon, and last half a pound of ground almonds. Put paper on a flat baking sheet, drop the mixture on by teaspoonfuls and bake in a quick oven until a light brown.

Little German caraway cakes are made by mixing two cups of flour, a cup of butter, a cup and a half of sugar, four eggs, two teaspoonfuls of rose water and half a cup of caraway seed. Drop on baking sheet and bake in a slow oven from 20 minutes to half an hour.

PREPARATION OF POTATOES

Before Baking a Lengthwise Strip Should Be Pared—After Boiling Shake in the Wind.

When preparing potatoes for baking cut one paring around the largest side of the potato lengthwise, and when baked the skin will slip off from each side nicely.

After boiling potatoes pour off all water, take kettle of potatoes to the back door, or wherever the wind will blow on them, and shake several times, and they will be white and mealy.

A fine potato soup: Take three medium sized potatoes, one pint milk, one teaspoonful chopped onion, one stalk celery, one teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful celery salt, one-half salt-spoonful white pepper, one-fourth salt-spoon cayenne, one-half tablespoonful flour, one tablespoonful butter. Cook potatoes until very soft, drain off the water, and mash them. Cook onion and celery with the milk in double boiler and add to the potatoes. Add the seasoning. Rub through a strainer; put on to boil again. Melt the butter in a small saucepan, blend it with the flour, and stir it into the boiling soup. Let it boil five minutes and serve very hot.

An easily prepared potato salad: Slice six cold boiled potatoes and two onions. For dressing, one-half cupful vinegar, one cupful of sweet cream whipped, one teaspoonful dry mustard, salt and pepper to taste, and at last add four hard boiled eggs.

New Way to Cook Cabbage.

Trim a medium sized head of cabbage, cut in half and cook in cold water. Let it boil fifteen minutes, then pour off the water and refill with boiling water. Boil twenty minutes longer, then take the cabbage from the water, draining it dry. Chop fine, season with salt, pepper, and butter to taste. Beat together two fresh eggs and four spoonfuls of sweet cream; add them to the seasoned cabbage and stir all together. Butter a pudding dish, and put the cabbage in and bake in a well heated oven twenty minutes, or until it is browned over the top.

Delicious Gingerbread.

One cup granulated sugar. Add two tablespoonfuls of molasses, four of melted butter, one even teaspoon of salt, one dessertspoon of cinnamon, and a teaspoon of mixed spices. Stir and rub well together, then add one beaten egg and one cup of sour milk (real sour). Then sift one even teaspoon of soda with two cups of flour, sift it into the other mixture and beat about two minutes. Then turn it into a nine-inch square tin, one and a half inches deep, sprinkle sugar over the top and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Cream Puffs.

One cup boiling water, one-half cup butter, one cup of flour, four eggs. Put the hot water and butter together, let it boil up, add all the flour at a time, stir briskly until it balls up from the dish, let cool, add four eggs one at a time, work with the hands and bake in slow oven about 40 minutes.

Cream for Puffs—Pint of milk, small cup of sugar, small half cup of flour, two eggs. Mix the flour and sugar dry, add it to the boiling milk, let it boil five minutes, then add eggs and boil a few minutes.

Custard Pie.

Two cups of sugar, one cup of new milk, three-fourths cup of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, yolks of five eggs, any desired flavoring. Stir flour in sugar, add milk, then well beaten yolks, then butter and flavoring. Whip whites of eggs stiff, add five tablespoonfuls of sugar for meringue.

HIS SUNDAY DINNER

"Really Laura," remarked Greenly reproachfully as he attacked the roast chicken for the fourth time with an unsuccessful carving knife, "I wish you wouldn't buy these antediluvian fowls. I simply can't hack this one to pieces."

"Mr. Smaus said there wasn't a better or tenderer chicken in his market," Frank, sighed Mrs. Greenly.

"Well, then, I don't think much of his market. I tell you, Laura, old Smaus doesn't give you a fair deal. I think it would be a good idea for us to jolt him by transferring our patronage to another market. That old fellow thinks he can put off any kind of inferior stuff on us. He imposes on our good nature."

"It sounds easy, Frank, when you say we should trade elsewhere, but you know very well that there isn't another market in Wayland and I certainly can't go into the city every day and carry out our supplies."

"Well, I can get 'em and bring 'em out," declared Greenly. "I'll get a chicken for our next Sunday dinner that won't be made of India rubber."

"I wish you would, dear," said Mrs. Greenly.
Saturday morning when he was leaving the house Mrs. Greenly reminded her husband that he was to bring home a chicken from town.
"I won't forget it," he promised her. "I've got it in my memorandum book and I'll buy one that can be cooked in half an hour."

In the afternoon when he telephoned that he would not be home until late that evening Mrs. Greenly inquired if he had bought the chicken for their Sunday dinner.

"Of course I have, Laura," he answered. "You seem to think I am as heedless as a schoolboy," he added.

"Oh, no, Frank, only I know you have so many business matters on your mind," said Mrs. Greenly soothingly.

Greenly thereupon assured her in a mollified voice that he was never too busy to remember to do things for her. "Where's the chicken?" she asked when he appeared at 10:30 o'clock that night.

"The chicken? By George, Laura, I—well, you see, I had to go to that extra meeting of the directors tonight and I never thought of the chicken. I left it on the top of my desk in the office. I had so much on my mind today. You can understand, can't you?"

"Yes, I can quite understand," answered Mrs. Greenly, almost too good-naturedly. "Of course, though, we can't get anything out here at this hour for our Sunday dinner. But I can make some codfish balls, and they will do very well."

"Codfish balls!" Greenly's look of depression deepened. "Oh, you won't have to do anything so desperate as that. I'll run into town the first thing in the morning and get the chicken. I can return with it in plenty of time for you to have it cooked for dinner."

"You're sure you won't mind, Frank? For you know it won't be any trouble to make the codfish balls."

"No, I'd really like to go. I can read the newspapers going and coming on the train and of course it would be foolish to let that chicken lie there and spoil in my office."

"Yes, that's so," agreed Mrs. Greenly.

The next morning she awakened her husband a half-hour earlier than his customary time to rise on Sunday. He bore the curtailing of his nap with as good a grace as he could muster and after breakfast he left home for the city with a semblance of cheerfulness.

Two hours later Mrs. Greenly opened the door for him with a welcoming smile, saying: "Well, did you get it?"

"Get it? The chicken? Why, yes, I got it—but I—well, the fact is, Laura, I left it on the train!"

"Fortunately," said Mrs. Greenly in a restrained, even voice, "Smaus sells very good salted codfish and we happen to have some in the house."

Murder of Joan of Arc.

The controversy as to which of the two nationalities has to bear the responsibility for the foul murder of Joan is futile, irrelevant, and even childish. It is true, on the one side, that the English rulers desired her death, and were delighted when she was executed. It is even probable that if she had escaped the torch, she would have been put to death by the English in the river, or by the dagger, or by the rope; but it is also true that it was Frenchmen who issued against her the indictment, who pushed her prosecution, who pronounced her sentence, who carried it into execution. But again I fall back on the point that neither the one nor the other of these protagonists in the tragedy of Joan of Arc can be held to stand for their respective nations or peoples. The French who did Joan of Arc to death were not Frenchmen in our modern sense. They were simply Burgundians, tied to the faction of the Duke of Burgundy, tied also to the Plantagenet faction, half English, half French, who then were fighting with another faction for the soil of France. Turn the question how you will, no sane historian who tries to study history with an impartial eye can make the story of Joan of Arc into an indictment against a nation.—T. P. O'Connor, in London T. P.'s Weekly.

WOMAN MAYOR.

Ties Male Candidate And Election Board Gives Her The Office.

Hunnell, Kas., April 4.—Mrs. Ella Wilson is now Mayor of this town. At the city election yesterday she and O. M. Akers were tied for the office. At first it was suggested that the two candidates draw lots for the office. But that did not appeal to the male voters. They said if Mrs. Wilson could race a man to a tie she ought to have the office. Therefore the judges of the election declared her elected.

Now she says she is going to clean up Hunnell.

In her campaign speeches she declared the town was harboring bootleggers and that the pool halls were being run contrary to law. She proposes to correct these alleged in fractions of the statutes.

WHEN HE WOKE UP

It was a surprise to Burchard when he dropped in to call upon Sylvia to find a strange young man occupying his special chair and acting quite as much at home as though he belonged there by right.

Burchard had been calling on Sylvia for months, even years, and had sat in that particular chair innumerable times. A sensation of being ill used and injured surged through his soul as he bowed with stern cordiality to the young man.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia was saying sweetly, "is a brother of my old school friend, Dot, of whom you've heard me talk so often, Ted. He's come to Chicago to go into business. Isn't that delightful?"

"Lovely!" agreed Burchard. There really was nothing else that he could say. Speech seemed to have been smothered within him by that first wave of surprise which had overwhelmed him.

Try as he might to enter into the conversation, Burchard found himself relapsing painfully into silence every little while.

The more he thought of the situation the more indignant Burchard grew. By the time he said good evening he was able to give Sylvia the frostiest sort of nod and barely to touch the tips of her fingers. The surprise in her eyes was succeeded by a flicker of something else, which was quickly hid by her lowered lids. Burchard would have been a good deal surprised if he had known that instead of dragging herself slowly up the stairs to weep over his cruelty Sylvia dropped down on the bottom step when the front door closed and laughed.

Naturally Burchard called the next evening to atone for the coolness of his good-by. Sylvia was wearing a particularly large bunch of violets, which he eyed malignantly.

"I love violets," Sylvia said absently, patting them. "You can almost smell these!"

"Almost," Burchard repeated, bewildered.

"They're artificial," Sylvia explained. "Did they fool you?"

The bound of relief that Burchard's heart gave when he found Gillmyer had not sent the flowers was perfectly evident, but Burchard was too upset to grasp the fact. He was conscious of an inner triumph when he left at 10:30 that he had had the field to himself. But these triumphs were few, for Gillmyer bobbed up at all sorts of moments.

"He knows so few people in town," Sylvia said once. "And, really, he's awfully nice, don't you think, Ted?"

"Fine chap," agreed Burchard, with a sensation of swallowing red-hot coals.

The worst of it was that Gillmyer really was a fine chap. He broke into the Sunday night chafing dish suppers that Burchard had been wont to enjoy with Sylvia, and he cut up the cheese and beat the eggs as though that had always been his duty.

Between whistles Gillmyer invited Sylvia to go to the theater and brought her books and candy as though there was no reason why he shouldn't. The little rankling jabs attached to this phase of the situation was that there really was no reason. Yet Burchard felt outraged.

The evening he called and found to his dismay that Sylvia had gone out somewhere with Gillmyer without the preliminary of letting him know when it was his regular night to call made Burchard see stars. Women, he said to himself cuttingly as he strode home at a great pace, are fickle, unreliable, frivolous, unworthy and unnecessary cumberers of the earth. He had thought Sylvia different, but that was merely because he was an imbecile. Burchard sat and stared at the wall for an hour, smoked three cigars and then turned in. At midnight he was still awake. "I suppose they are just about getting home now," he murmured.

It amazed him that Sylvia should show no trace of contrition, shame or concern about the manner in which she was treating him. She acted as though she was perfectly all right and appeared to have no uneasiness over Burchard's acquired gloom. On the contrary, she seemed to be having a decidedly good time. That she actually could enjoy Gillmyer's society was an agonizing blow to Burchard. His mind was such a mixture of unhappiness and bewilderment that he did not even try to figure out a solution.

He was agreeably surprised when he called one evening to find that Gillmyer was not present. "I don't wish him any bad luck, but I hope the train runs off the track!"

"Why, Ted Burchard," said Sylvia, in proper horror. "The idea of your feeling that way!"

"I've just discovered how I feel," said Burchard, grimly. "And now that I know my esteemed friend Gillmyer can't break in on us at any minute and that I actually have your undivided attention, I'd like to go into details and elaborate on the subject!"

"Why, Ted!" said Sylvia again. "You amaze me! But—er—go on, please!"

GEO. E. GARY

PRESIDENT

Of The Athenaeum Literary Society For The Ensuing Year

BANQUET NIGHT, MAY 4.

The Program Of Speeches An Unusually Attractive One.

The Athenaeum met at Hotel Latham Thursday evening at seven o'clock and dinner was served in the ordinary to the 17 members present.

Judge J. T. Hanbery by reason of his court duties was excused and transferred to a later place on the program. Col. Jonett Henry, also on the program, was out of the city.

The only paper was by Chas. M. Meacham, whose subject was "Webster's Name on the Roll of Fame." The paper was a biographical and historical sketch of Daniel Webster, the statesman, and Noah Webster, the philologist, with the conclusion that the latter was a greater man than the orator, judging both by their achievements and benefits to mankind. The paper provoked an animated discussion, most of the speakers voicing the popular idea that Daniel Webster was one of the country's intellectual giants overlooking the real and true greatness of the scholar.

The committee on arrangements for the banquet May 4 reported that it would be held at Hotel Latham at 8:30 o'clock p. m. A less elaborate menu will be provided and more time given for speeches this time.

The program committee reported the following list of speakers, the after-dinner talks to be limited to fifteen minutes each:

John Stites, "Moving Pictures." Davis A. Clark, "Ideals and Idealism."

Thos. C. Underwood, "Facts and Fiction."

J. T. Hanbery, "Man's Best Friend." C. H. H. Branch, "Peas and Queues." H. Clay Smith, "The Last Word."

The annual election of officers was held and the following officers elected in each case by acclamation:

President, Geo. E. Gary. Vice President, J. J. Henry.

Secretary and Treasurer, H. W. Linton.

The President, Mr. Geo. E. Gary, will be toastmaster at the banquet. Each of the 30 members has the

PROHIBITION FIGHTS

In Cadiz and Pembroke Come To Close To-day and Monday.

There will be an election in Trigg county to-day on the prohibition question. The contest has been a hard-fought and most exciting one. The dry forces are more confident of victory than the wets, but it is conceded that the whisky people will put up a strong fight. The county has been dry for several years. The prohibitionists have made a speaking campaign with Revs. Coaklev, Hawkins, Anderson, Petty and Hyde doing the speaking, while the wets have made a still hunt.

Pembroke Votes Monday.

A similar election will be held next Monday in the town of Pembroke and the Journal predicts an easy victory for the drys. General rallies will be held Sunday night at the various churches, the speakers being Rev. Pat Davis, Dr. Joe Stevens, of Frankfort, Mr. and Palmer, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. The colored speakers will be Revs. Kennedy, Britt and Bigbee. Street services are held every night.
